TAKING WIRE TO A NEW LEVEL.

LÜLING is one of the leading suppliers of special drawn profiles.

We produce special profiles that fall outside normal technical standards under the name pro-FTM (pro forming).

Geometries close to those of the end product can reduce the number of transformation stages in your production process.

By taking the first step towards manufacturing a primary product, there is the opportunity to expand the forming potential.

This step also allows you to have simplified tool design, increased component precision and not least to reduce tool wear.

This product innovation has already shown good results and there has been great success in cutting costs. We hope to have piqued your interest.
