STAHL DRAHTWERK

COLD HEADING WIRE FROM LÜLING

As one of the largest steel mill-independent wire drawing plants in Europe, we draw cold heading wire from 1 to 36 mm in accordance with EN 10263 and EN 10269 for customers worldwide.

In order to fulfil your individual requirements, we have a wide range of materials available and can produce the precise wire you need for your requirements.

Our entire production process is continuously monitored and checked by experienced specialists using the latest technology.

TAKING WIRE TO A NEW LEVEL

We have been a family-owned business since it was founded in 1857. Despite our long tradition, we are continually developing ourselves and our product range. Our company's core business is in the automotive industry, but we also supply numerous other industries with our high-quality wires.

We are convinced that an uncompromising focus on the needs and requirements of our customers is the foundation for long-term success. This is why we use our many years of experience, qualified specialists and state-of-the-art production technology to continuously optimise service and quality.

Our team of qualified and motivated employees is available to provide you with comprehensive technical advice and support on all possible issues relating to your processes.

WE HAVE A GOOD CONNECTION

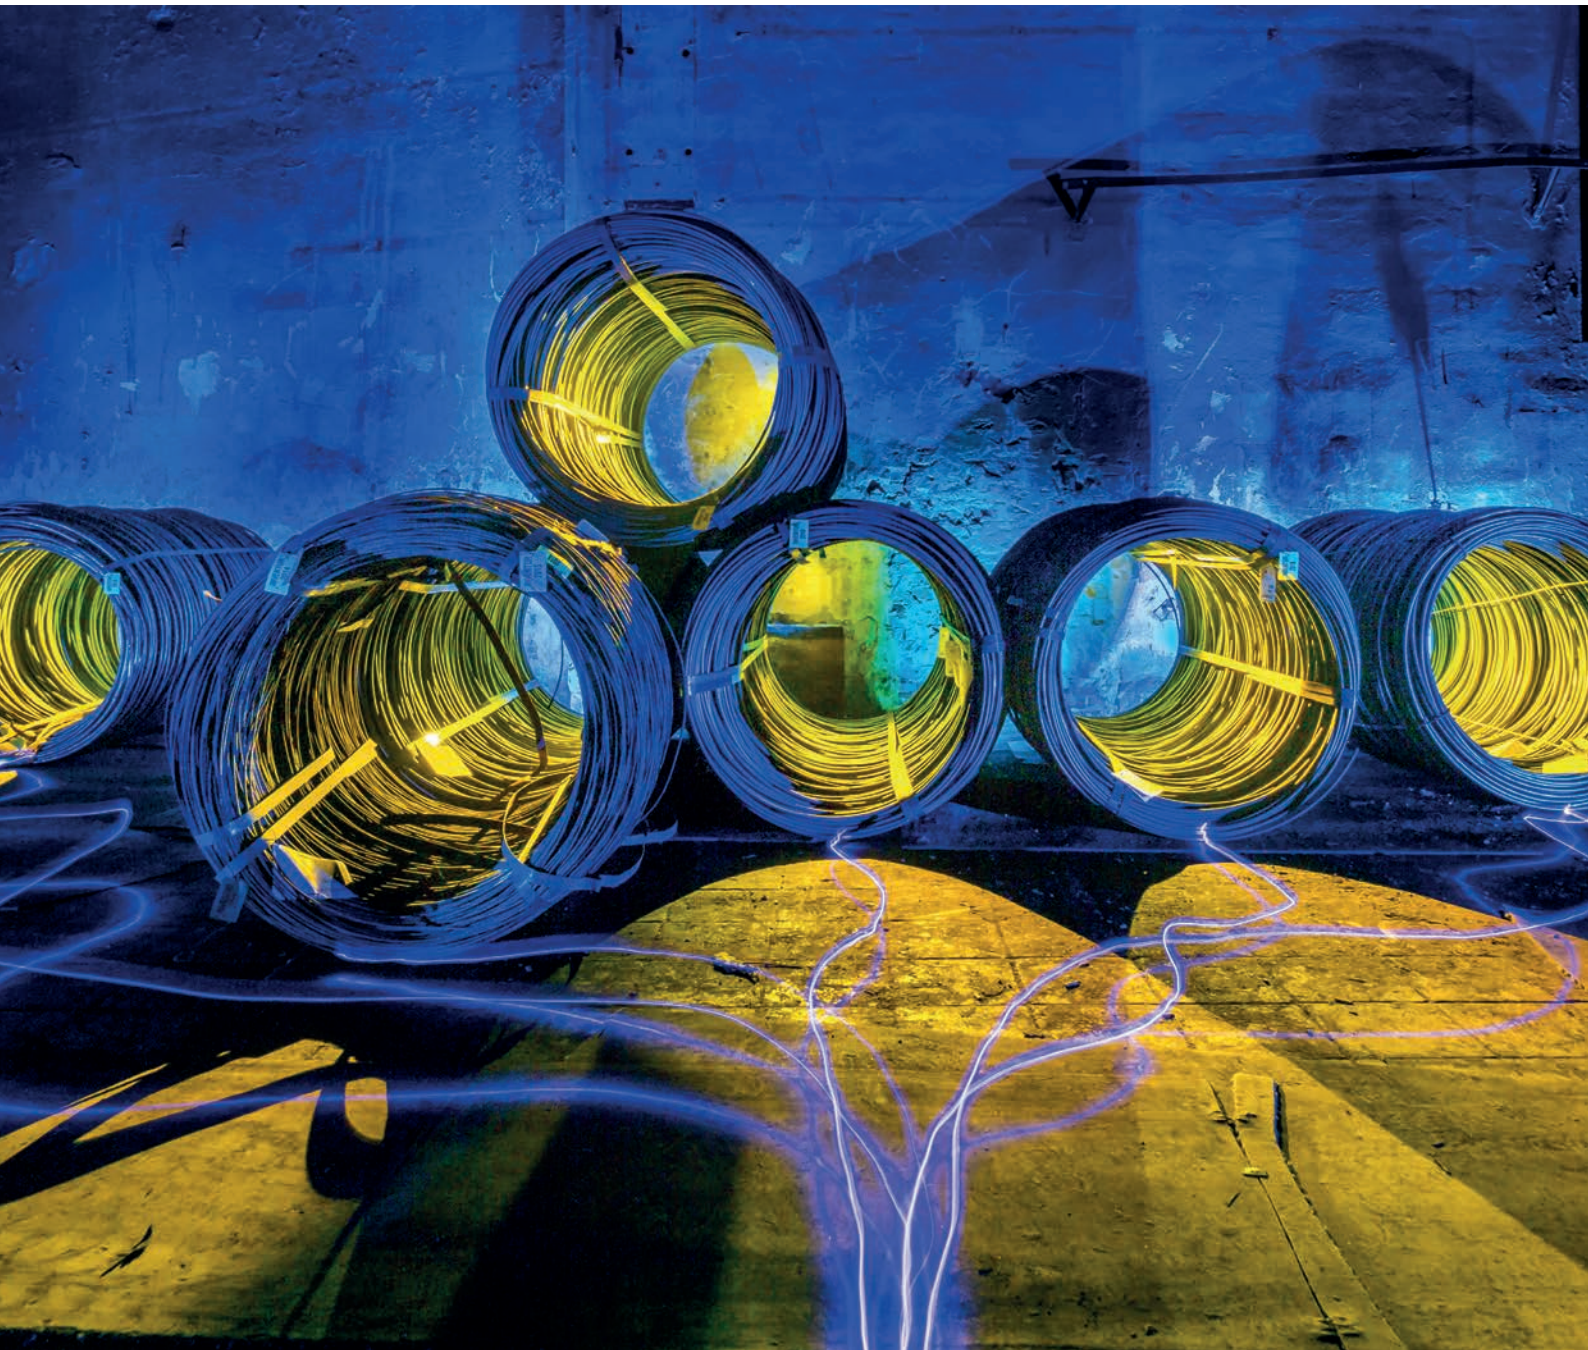

The „Wire Capital of the World“ Altena in the Sauerland region, is the birthplace and heart of the German wire industry. We are proud of this tradition and feel deeply connected to our region and the industrial area of South Westphalia. This is also reflected in our workforce: although we operate internationally, the majority of our employees come from the region.

Flat organizational structures, fast decision-making processes and constant communication with our employees are what set us apart. In return, our employees demonstrate a high degree of individual responsibility and performance awareness. We are convinced that passion and commitment go hand-in-hand with a safe and challenging workplace and attractive remuneration. We have a good relationship with our employees. And this is reflected in the quality and reliability of our products.

This corporate culture has proven itself over generations and is constantly evolving. In addition, we offer young people the opportunity to learn a wide range of professions in a professional environment as part of their training activities.
